EMPLOYMENT REPORT

Arizona Department of Economic Security, Research Administration

August 16, 2007

Arizona's Unemployment Rate at 3.7 Percent in July as Nonfarm Jobs Decline by 18,800

Arizona's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 3.7 percent in July. This represents a 0.3 percentage point increase from June. At the national level, the unemployment level was essentially unchanged at 4.6 percent.

Arizona's economy lost a total of 18,800 nonfarm jobs in July. This loss was slightly less than seasonally expected. The private sector lost 5,700 jobs, while government lost 13,100.

Four of 11 major industries reported employment gains in July — natural resources and mining (+300); construction (+900); trade, transportation and utilities (+1,800); and information (+100). At the industry cluster level, goods-producing industries gained 1,200 jobs and service-providing industries lost 20,000.

The construction industry gained 900 jobs in July. This is in contrast to the losses experienced during the previous four months. Construction of buildings grew by 200 jobs; heavy construction remained flat; and specialty trades gained 700 jobs.

Professional and business services declined by 500 jobs. Despite gains from two major sectors — professional, scientific and technical services (500), and management of companies and enterprises (300) — administrative and support and waste lost 1,300 jobs. Losses in administrative support and waste were spread among employment services (-500), businesses support services (-400) and services to buildings (-500). Compared to July 2006, the over-the-year growth rate of professional and business services was 5.3 percent, and the over-the-month growth rate has been consistently higher than the 10-year average for a number of months.

As expected, the leisure and hospitality industry showed a decline of 6,300 jobs in July. This represented its third consecutive month of seasonal declines. Accommodation and food services employment was down by 5,200. The majority of the declines occurred in food services and drinking places.

Financial activities added 1,000 jobs in July with a near-average growth rate. Recent months, however, have shown slowing growth. Activity in this industry was mixed last month. Gains occurred in credit intermediation and securities (+1,000) and security and commodities contracts (+100). The insurance carriers and related activities group was down by 100 jobs, while real estate and rental and leasing remained flat.

Educational and health services employment was down by 2,100, with the majority of losses occurring in educational services. As in June, growth in the number of hospital-related jobs continued to increase, while the social assistance sector was on par with its seasonal pattern of losses in June and July. Overall, for this industry 12-month growth rates have been slowing since the beginning of 2007.

Information again showed growth by adding 100 jobs in July. This is the fourth consecutive month of gains for this industry. Despite these over-the-month gains, the industry's total employment last month was below its July 2006 level.

Other services is a very diverse industry, making it difficult to pinpoint in which sectors the loss of 900 jobs originated.

Government decreased by 13,100 jobs. Federal government declined by 600 jobs and state government lost 1,200 jobs. Local government lost the largest number of jobs (-11,300). Within local government, education alone pared 11,700 jobs.

Natural resources and mining added

300 jobs. Metal ore mining continued to increase employment with the addition of 200 jobs

Manufacturing was flat in June.

Nondurable goods had a loss of 200 jobs, while durable goods offset that loss by adding 200. Computer and electronic parts employment grew by 100 and aerospace products and parts added 200.

Trade, transportation and utilities experienced a net gain of 1,800 jobs. Trade as a whole gained 1,600 jobs. Retail trade displayed above-average growth by adding 1,300 jobs. Clothing and clothing accessories stores (+300), along with department stores (+600), benefited from increased back-to-school sales. Wholesale trade gained 300 jobs. Transportation and warehousing was relatively flat, gaining a total of 100 jobs.

In conclusion, Arizona's economy

continued to experience seasonal-related layoffs in July. These losses were generally isolated to the service-providing industries and most of these jobs are expected to return as schools (public and private) start a new year and tourism-related industries prepare for the upcoming season. While manufacturing and construction have shown cyclical weakness in recent months, figures for July might indicate some resurgence in these industries. Yet, as Arizona's nonfarm jobs have slowed to a 12-month growth rate of 2.8 percent (from 5.3 percent one year earlier), Arizona's unemployment rate of 3.7 percent continued to indicate a tight labor market. Notably, all other states have also shown slower growth. Data for June showed Arizona ranked 2nd in over-the year job growth, with three states showing 12-month job losses.
